Where I'm from Poem (Israel Edition)

I am from the deserts of Arabia, from seas that flow with salty waters, mountain ranges that are tall and full of green , valleys with rich soil on from the rivers, from olive gardens in the summer.

I am from the Jewish faith, from the first testament of christian bible, the holy Torah read from a scroll from the days of rest on the sabbath, and going in the temples to learn about God.

I am from the land of Canaan, from the promised land of my people which God had given us from the land that flows of milk and honey and always plentiful.

I am from the Dispora, from the sad times of families being ripped apart, with foreigners taking us as slaves to work in their homes, from the time that split the civilization apart, and triggered the spread of Judaism.

I am from the merry times of Hanukah, from lighting the candles on each day.
From the family time, and the large feasts and fun.

I am from the land of Abraham, from the great person of the bible who started the civilization, and the religion of Judaism. from the man who made the great journey for his families future.

I am from the place of golden robes, where the rich wear elaborate robes and clothing, from the place where the poor only wear a rag or sometimes naked.

I am from the land of gold, where marble is quarried faster than Usian Bolt, from the land where bsalt is carved into tablets for teaching.

I am from the land of music and entertainment, from the land of lyres, harps and flutes filling the markets.
from the time of no iPods and radios.

I am from Israel.
